“ The world is a poorer place, Mrs. P. You were always quick with that wonderful smile; especially when Mr. P. or my dad were joking around). To this day, I can close my eyes, and still smell the heavenly aromas wafting through the air as you simmered your Bolognese sauce (I would swear it was on Wednesdays!). It was Heaven on a plate! You were such an important part of my life, even when I moved away, and my parents were gone. I think of how you desperately loved your family and friends, and were always willing to welcome a newcomer into your circle. You were a force to be reckoned with in casinos and bingo halls, and I know it wasn't just luck; you were a brilliant strategist. You had an infallible eye for style, and were a gifted seamstress. Thank you for guarding me those dark nights when I checked my parents' house, for listening to my concerns as a new mother, and telling me "You are like one of my own;" just a few of the countless reasons I will always think of you as a second mother, and love you forever. I know you are with Mr. P., and all your other loved ones once again; and I am thanking God for that, and for your life.
